ations to a luncheon-bridge
honoring a popular bride-elect, Miss Lenora Routon. The party will be at 1 o'clock at her home.

Several Informal Parties are Given To Welcome The New Year

Among the many informal gatherings in the city on Wednesday evening was the dinner party given by Josef Sorkin at his home, 622 North Hervey, honoring Mr. and Mrs. T. J.
Cambren, who were celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Holiday decorations interspersed with "fifteens" were noted throughout the house. Dinner was served to twelve guests.

Another affair of the gala season took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boyle E. Guyman. There, mistletoe and holly predominated in a dainty gift.

Mrs. R. L. Broach Is High
Scorer at Tuesday Club

Meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy Allison, members of the Tuesday bridge club enjoyed their weekly games on Tuesday afternoon. Additional guests were Mrs. Brooks Shultz, Mrs. D. M. Finley of St. Louis,
Mrs. O. C. Sutton, Mrs. Bill Brasher, and Mrs. Lawrence Martin.

For making the high score for the club, Mrs. R. L. Broach was presented with a gift, and Mrs. Bill Brasher, who was the guest high scorer, received a prize.

Following the games the hostess served fruit cake and coffee to the players and one tea guest, Mrs. James Pilkington.

Personal Mention

Dickie Walkins and H. O. Kyler are in New Orleans to see the Sugar Bowl game.

Tommy Kinser arrives Friday to spend a few days with relatives before returning to the University of Arkansas. During the holidays he has been touring the state with the Varsity club orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carter and children, Betty and Tommy, have returned to their home following a visit with Mrs. Carter's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Pritchard. Miss Happy Pritchard, who has also been visiting her mother for the holidays, departs Saturday for her home in Washington, D. C.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Guyman received their guests informally with Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Cambren.

Soon after midnight a delectable supper was served, buffet style, to a number of guests.

Fifty people danced at the American Legion hall to the music of a nickelodeon Wednesday evening. For the occasion the club rooms were artificially decorated in the holiday motto.

Out-of-town guests for the dance were Captain and Mrs. Jack G. Cornett of Fort Benning.

Miss Sara Ann Holland Is Honoree
At Dinner Bridge Wednesday Evening

Miss Sara Ann Holland of Washington D. C., who is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Gosnell for the holidays, was the inspiration of an important event of Wednesday evening, when Mrs. E. O. Wingfield entertained at a dinner-bridge.

Dinner was served at two small tables, which were centered with gloving tapers surrounded with gar-lands of greenery. At points of vantage, arrangements of shell pink gludoli were noted by the guests.

Enjoying the occasion with the hostess and hostess were Miss Frances Clayton, Miss Nell Louis Broyles, Miss Nancy Robins, Miss Frances
Yocom, Miss Mary Cornelia Holloway,
Miss Marjory Muses, and Miss Mary Bowen.

Bridge was played during the evening with Miss Mary Cornelia Holloway receiving the high score gift and Miss Marjory Bowen the bingo prize.
Miss Holland was presented with a dainty gift.

what she was doing, or had boy friend or husband in the offing.
Something like that, anyway.

She is a pretty girl, this composite Mary Roe—about five feet four, with honest blue eyes, a beautifully clear complexion, dark wavy hair that brushes her shoulders. She is a figure model by choice, because she said simply, "I like to feel I'm being a part of tradition."

"I began posing for illustrators when I got out of high school," she told me. "After a time I wanted more money, so I started posing in costume.
As I got to know and understand the artists better, my attitude toward figure modeling changed and it was the next logical step.

"I wouldn't be a Conover or Powers girl if I could. For one thing, I'd need a much more elaborate wardrobe. For another, figure modeling is more abstract than the other kinds.
In costume you are just a mannequin. In figure you can express many more beautiful things."

That word "abstract" is a favorite with Mary Roe. To her it is the difference between impersonal and personal regard, nudity and nakedness, art and obscenity.

Once Mary was posing unconcern-edly before a class of art students, her mind on how she would do over her fall coat. She became aware that a woman repairing an adjacent roof was staring at her. She became hysterical and had to be taken home.

Under the same code and philosophy which justifies her job, Mary considers it unethical to disrobe before the artist or class. She uses an adjoining room or screen. When she emerges and takes her pose she is a figure and not Mary Roe. Arms, shoulders, torso and limbs are but lines.

I did a certain amount of prying into Mary Roe's private life. An artist of long experience and no delusions said this:

"Most of the girls are pretty straight. I don't suppose there are any more extra-curricular relationships between artists and models than between buss and stenographer, in spite of the circumstances they work under."

"I don't mean this as whitewash, because that would be silly. But to be practical, girls with loose morals cause so much trouble nobody wants them around. They're no good as models anyway. They twitch too much."

I asked Mary herself about the wolves in artists' clothing, but she shrugged it off.

"I've been posing for eight years," she said, "and I've had only two or three such experiences. We're careful about making appointments with persons we don't know. And when we find that a man just brought us there to look at, we go in a hurry. Besides, I'm a good screamer."

All of which, thanks to Mary, should answer a few questions.

Farm Bureau Backs Food Defense Plan

Group Pledges More Abundant Crops for America in 1942

LITTLE ROCK—Confidence in the ability and willingness of farmers to produce abundantly of food crops during the war emergency has been expressed by President Roosevelt in a letter to the American Farm Bureau Federation. R. E. Sherr, president of the Farm Bureau in Arkansas, has announced.

The letter, addressed to Edward A. Neal, president of the national federation, in part reads: ". . . The entire nation is mobilizing to produce the materials necessary for the defense of democracy. As a part of our production effort, food is just as important as munitions.

It is heartening, therefore, to know that American farmers have produced and are producing abundantly. Farmers set a record in '41. They are preparing to produce even more abundantly to meet the greater needs of '42. Not only must they provide food for the United States; they must produce food for England and other nations resisting aggression, and reserves of food for the future. After Hitler is defeated—as he must and will be defeated—the United States must be in a position to use food as an instrument to help assure a just peace and a lasting peace.

"I am confident that the farmers of this country will produce this food. I am equally confident that the nation will see to it that agriculture receives a fair return for its effort and the protection necessary to prevent a repetition of the collapse that followed the last World War. One reason for my confidence is the existence of independent farm organizations like your own that will contribute powerful support to the welfare of agriculture and to the total defense effort. Very sincerely yours, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

In response to this message, Mr. Neal said, the following reply was dispatched to the President: "The men, women, and youth of America's farms herewith assure you of their full response to your call to arms. We are here and now pledge to you a fullest measure of our support to dedicate ourselves and that which we possess to the righteous cause of a united people. We, as one, with God's help, will march with you against the common foe. The American Farm Bureau Federation, Edward A. O'Neal, president."

By formal resolution, the Farm Bureau at its recent national meeting in Chicago, adopted the following policy: "We have pledged everything we possess to aid the national all-out drive against the forces of evil. We deeply appreciate the fact that President Roosevelt recognized, in his message to our convention, the vital importance of agriculture in meeting this challenge to our national security. We appreciate also the assurance the President has given us that agriculture will be recognized and will be given fair treatment and the protection necessary to prevent a repetition of the collapse that followed his first war. Since the importance of agriculture has been adequately recognized, and since we have pledged our all-out support to the success of the national effort, we urge the federation to use every rightful influence to see that the ultimate peace is finally attained, agriculture be represented on the peace table in proportion to its contribution in winning the war, in proportion to its vast interest in a fair and permanent peace."

Grass Is Greener but Cattle Are Leaner

PIERRE, S. D.—(P)—Tell a rancher from the short grass country his pastures are the greenest in many years and things certainly do look as this fall. You get a sour smile. Green grass produces soft fat that sinks off on the trip to market, while Dakota stockmen much prefer the brown buffalo grass that cures dry in the summer, but liberal fall rains have turned ranches green again six months early.

Rescue After Nazi Attack

Somewhere at sea a German bomber came upon a British rescue ship jammed with injured survivors of sunken merchantmen. The bomber set the ship afire, machine-gunned the injured trying to escape in lifeboats. Some, see below, were saved by a British warship that also blasted the Nazi sky vulture.

One group of survivors take to a raft as their lifeboat goes under after being riddled by the strafing German plane.

Harrison in Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON, NEA Service Correspondent

They Get the Gals for Army Morale

HOLLYWOOD—The movie colony has been doing pretty handsomely by the pleasant practice of entertaining groups of service men in private homes, and Melvyn Douglas is one of the busier hosts.

Other day he telephoned the committee that arranges such things offering to feed and fete 50 of the boys. Said to send 'em around about 4 p. m., and he'd see that they got back by midnight. Also, promised the actor confidently, he'd provide dates for everyone. He was thanked and assigned 50 marines.

Maybe you know how Hollywood gals are about appointments, or if you don't, you're lucky. Anyway there was a hitch somewhere in the cutie recruiting arrangements, and only 35 showed up. Douglas didn't wait long for stragglers. He picked a couple of the handsomest marines, led them a block or so over to busy Beverly boulevard, took up a post on the curb and began thumbing.

There was no indiscriminate signaling, of course. Only pretty girls in cars. A few prospects got by, but most of them recognized the star whose last job was kissing Greta Garbo and wheeled up to the curb with shrieking brakes. After that, it was easy. Within half an hour, 15 eminently satisfactory young things had been detoured to the home of Douglas and Helen Gahagan and were busy on the telephone, breaking dates with fiancées and regular boy friends. On a San Diego bound train, Dorothy Lamour was asked if she'd mind going forward a few cars to be introduced to a couch full of soldiers. She said of course she'd do it, and that she hoped the boys wouldn't mind because she didn't happen to be traveling in a sarong.

The recruit seemed only to confuse the young officer who escorted her. After yelling for attention he announced her as "Dorothy Lamour" and then, thinking to correct himself, as "Hedy Lamarr."

Miss Lamour wasn't flustered. "Just call me Butch," she told the lads. And they did.

Militia outfit called the California State Guard has been recruiting here about, but it got little support from the film colony until Col. Lewis Stone began organizing the 1st Evacuation Regiment. This will be a transport outfit, motorized with station wagons, and charged with the job of removing people from zones of bombing or disaster. Almost every star in town seems to own a station wagon, and future evacuees can figure on being rescued in style, with a Cooper or a Gable at the wheel, and air-conditioning and a cocktail bar to help turn the retreat into a memorable excursion.

Postoffice to Collect Taxes

Will Handle $5
Use Tax on Autos,
Motor Boats

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON—For the first time in the history of our government, the Post Office Department is going to become a tax collection agency unless—

The tax is to be collected is the $5 use tax on the nation's 32,000,000 motor vehicles and on motor boats. The "unless" must go into the statement because there is a possibility that the tax will be repealed before it becomes operative February 1.

No item in the tax bill has caused the Treasury Department more grief than this comparatively minor one, designed to raise only $160,000.

Treasury officials burned midnight oil for weeks trying to figure out a method of collecting it and preventing the use-tax dodgers from evading the penalties of the law.

After almost every possible method had been explored, the department selected what was considered the least objectionable—making every post office window a collection agency. The Post Office estimates that it will cost them $1,500,000 in increased personnel. And this has been allowed in the new supplemental appropriations bill. It's about one-third the total amount the Treasury asked for overall collection costs on this pestiferous item.

The collection method, as now worked out, is to sell stickers at post office windows. Motorists and motor boat owners will be expected to go to the post office, plunk down their $5 and pick up their stickers. At the same time, they will be given a card to fill out and return to the internal revenue collector.

These cards will be checked against a master list of car owners obtained from state highway departments. In time, of course, the non-payers will show up as unchecked whereupon the Treasury will launch its follow up collection system.

This won't differ much from that used by any high-pressure mail collection agency. Although no threats will be used of course, I wouldn't be surprised if it weren't pointed out to the persistent dodgers that refusal to pay the tax could get a man in the hoosegow for a short while as well as put him out of pocket in fines a good deal more than $5. Where mail collection fails to work, the collector's staff will have to stop bounding the income tax evaders and turn policemen to get in this chicken feed. It's pretty certain that the proportion of dodgers will run fairly high. The owners of $50 jalopies are not going to be happy about paying 10 per cent of the cost of their car, in addition to license fees, merely for the joy of using it.

Repeal of the use tax has been talked unofficially for a long time but it got its first mention on the floor of the Senate the other day when Senator Walter F. George, chairman of the finance committee, was asking for the $1,500,000 for the Post Office Department.

Senator Carl Hayden, of Arizona, asked Senator George: "Has consideration been given by the finance committee to the repeal of the use tax on automobiles?"

"Not yet," said Senator George, "but in January we shall have an opportunity to consider the whole tax program again."

"Then there will be an opportunity to consider the repeal of the tax prior to the time the tax goes into effect," asked Senator Hayden.

Senator George said there would be and there will, but it will take fast work. The pro-rated payments, $2.08 for the five months to July 1, start on the first of February and the repeal will have to come weeks in advance if the Treasury is to avoid printing and circulating all the paraphernalia on collection.

Other day, while editing the 184 balloon sequence in "Reap the Wind," De Mille uttered a low moan and stopped the film. In the background, but plain enough if you happened to be looking that way, was an extra player wearing dark glasses and carrying a copy of a modern picture magazine.

AAA Handbook Ready for Distribution

Book Contains Provisions for 1942 Conservation Program

Distribution of the 1942 Triple-A state handbook will be made to farmers of Hempstead county in a short time, according to H. Earl Kink, chairman of the county Triple-A committee. The handbook, which contains provisions of the 1942 Conservation program, was designed as a guide to Arkansas farmers in cooperating with the program.

Sufficient copies of the state handbook have been received by the county Triple-A office to supply one copy to every farmer in the county. Farmers who wish to get their copy before general distribution is made may call at the county office for it.

Conservation payments for various commodities based on allotments and normal yields are as follows: Cotton, 1.25 cents a pound; wheat, 10.5 cents a bushel; peanuts, 7.25 cents per 100 pounds; Irish potatoes, 2 cents a bushel; rice, 1.35 cents a bushel; and Burley tobacco, 7 cents a pound. Acreage allotments have been made on all of the crops for which payments will be made. Marketing quotas will be in effect for cotton, wheat, peanuts and tobacco.

The following message was issued by the state Agricultural Conservation Committee to farmers of the state along with the handbook: "With unsettled conditions throughout the world, it is now more important than ever that American farmers make the fullest use possible of a strong farm program. The opportunity is offered to us and every other farmer in the county by the 1942 AAA farm program.

"The major objectives of our program for 1942 continue to be: 1. To help us get a fair share of the national income. 2. To protect consumers by providing abundant supplies of agricultural products at prices that are fair both to them and to us. 3. To rebuild and maintain the productivity of our soil, thus making it possible for us to produce an abundant supply of farm products throughout the future. 4. To improve living conditions of farm people by increasing food and feed production for home use.

"For 1942 the objectives of the program are extended to include production of sufficient food for the countries which are resisting aggressor nations as well as for our own people. In order to do this we have been asked by the Secretary of Agriculture to increase production of pork, poultry, dairy products, certain fruits and vegetables, peanuts and soybeans for oil, as well as other food or feed crops that we need on our farms. It is your duty to study the program carefully and make the best use of the opportunities it offers. We are sure that all of these urgent needs can be met through the proper use of the program and in doing so you will conserve your soil and make needed improvements on your farm."

Members of the state committee are: R. C. Branch, Mississippi county, chairman; C. C. Willey, Jefferson county; C. C. ox, Arkansas county; Jim Keith, Columbia county; Kit Phillips, Benton county; Aubrey D. Gates, assistant director of Extension and J. B. Daniels, administrative officer in charge, AAA.

Upon education also falls the duty of helping our citizens, young and old, to understand the great issues which face them now. The war will be won in the Pacific and in Europe, but the peace must be won at the crossroads.

Through the nation-wide School and College Civilian Morale Service, citizens will be brought together in study and discussion groups in their respective neighborhoods to attack our pressing policy problems in the democratic way.

No Pelt Payoff When They Can Yelp

GREEN RIVER, Wyo.—(AP)—When Owen Burgess reported to County Clerk Helen Hamm's office to collect a bounty on four coyotes, Clerk Hamm inquired if the animals had been pelleted.

Burgess casually replied that the animals still were wearing their pelts and invited the county clerk to inspect them.

She found them in Burgess' car, still very much alive. Then Burgess explained he had roped the coyotes after running them down with a horse.

Burgess didn't collect the bounty until after his captives had been exterminated.

Students Train to Win Fight

Generation Must Hold Tomorrow's Peace

By JOHN W. STUDEBAKER
U. S. Commissioner of Education
Written for NEA Service

WASHINGTON—Education, like every other department of American life, has a clear goal set by the President: "We are going to win the war and we are going to win the peace that follows."

To win the war education is going to do these things:

Expand vocational training for the men and women needed for war industries. Especially must be the training of women workers be greatly increased.

Expand professional and technical training for war jobs. Colleges, which have already given intensive courses in engineering, physics, chemistry, and management, will broaden training to include other professions and must be helped to provide instruction for increased enrollments in these and related fields.

In colleges and universities especially, plans to win the peace must be made. This means gathering facts and making preparations for knitting together the torn fabric of world society, a task requiring wisdom, understanding, and long-range planning.

Upon education also falls the duty of helping our citizens, young and old, to understand the great issues which face them now. The war will be won in the Pacific and in Europe, but the peace must be won at the crossroads.

Through the nation-wide School and College Civilian Morale Service, citizens will be brought together in study and discussion groups in their respective neighborhoods to attack our pressing policy problems in the democratic way.

Elementary and secondary schools will increase their emphasis on health and the building of strong bodies. The school lunch program will be extended to insure better nutrition and to teach better nutrition habits. Curriculums will be reorganized to give more attention to the interdependence of all peoples.

High schools will change their courses to prepare boys and girls for the immediate war responsibilities. High schools will also mobilize youth for voluntary service. Teachers also in all schools will give some of their time to voluntary service.

Education Will Expand
School officials will take steps to protect teachers and children during periods of emergency. They will make a special study of this problem. School will instruct citizens in the various voluntary war tasks assigned them.

Plans for the education of adults who cannot meet fourth-grade minimum intelligence requirements for military service will be greatly extended.

Education must and will turn its whole vast energies to national services to win the war and the peace.

Cultace, an Oriental lettuce, is now being grown in this country.
